In this document, we will be investigating what an elevator pitch is. In the business world, I must be able to communicate quickly and precisely. An elevator pitch is a brief way to introduce myself, getting across a key point or two, and making a connection with someone.

We will be researching and writing about the main elements of an elevator pitch, its structure, and its importance in the Business English environment.

It's called an elevator pitch because it takes the same time that you spend with someone riding in an elevator. In this time, we will introduce ourselves, get the point across, and ask to stay connected, all before that person gets off the elevator.

I need to know myself and be able to communicate everything about me in 30 to 60 seconds, like skills or experiences that I have. I need to describe my plans for the company to show them that I am the best candidate.

In an elevator pitch, we have 30 seconds to introduce ourselves, describe our skills, values, and passion

It's important to end by asking a question, as simple as a request for advice and sharing information. Always give the person a way to be helpful, sharing information, or making a professional contact to let them know how they can help you

The elevator pitch is also used by project managers, salespeople, and job seekers as a way to market themselves or their idea or project, which is worth investing in, by explaining things such as the features, benefits, and cost savings

The elements in the elevator pitch:

A quick question for myself and the company

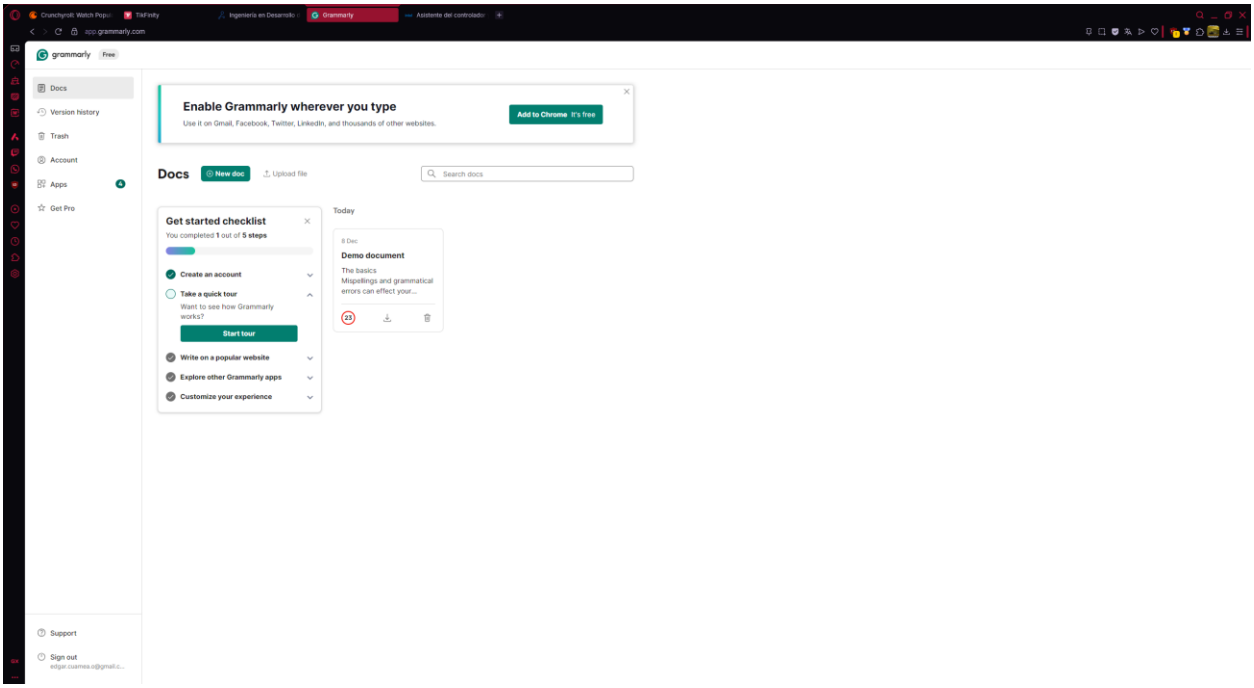

A brief description of the problem, company products or services solves.

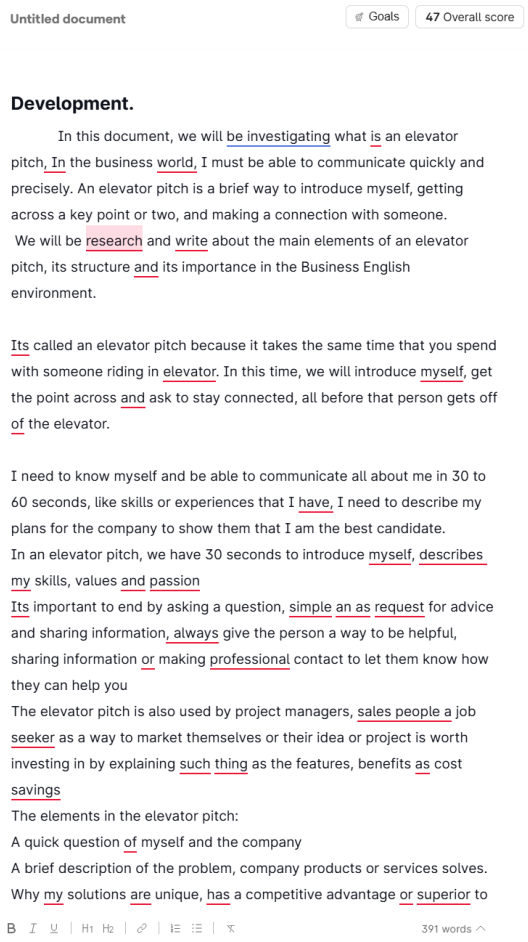

Why are my solutions unique, have a competitive advantage, or are superior to other solutions? A glimpse into the earnings potential of my product or service

A persuasive call to action.

An elevator pitch needs to be fast, agile, and concise; it requires creativity, assertiveness, adapting to the time available, knowing the audience or the person that I am addressing, and anticipating questions that may arise so I can respond quickly.

They will basically use this method for every interview we have, so we must be quick and convince the interviewer that we are the perfect candidate, as they have around 30 to 60 seconds to explain our skills.

At my first try typing this document, I had troubles with most of the words because I had more than 3 years of zero practice typing in another language and I find difficult to write because it takes me a long time to write the correct words, I have mane spelling mistakes and I corrected using Grammarly but I still need to practice my English
